COUNSELLOR'S CORNER: Public Speaking Anxiety

Do you do any of the following?

- Feel nervous/anxious when thinking about doing a presentation
- Feel your palms sweat, your legs shake or your heart beats wildly before starting a class or speech
- Find your thoughts race and your mind blanks before or during a presentation
- Notice your program/course assignments take a "bite" from having to make a speech
- Skip class or make an excuse or a course by not doing a speech
- Develop a negative reaction or attitude (that feel bad at the time) to meet during presentation
- Let others in your group "carry" the presentation
- Feel "making a fool of yourself" in front of teachers or peers
- Believe it is just a "freaky" one you just had a "freaky"

These are some signs you may be experiencing one of the most common student public speaking anxiety. It can be overcome using a proven approach involving: 1) recognizing and altering negative thoughts; 2) relaxation and positive mental rehearsal techniques; and 3) practicing in low risk situations and then in situations with graduated levels of risk.

If your course work, your self belief, or your potential to perform as an employee are affected it is time to do something about it. Remember, experience actually increases anxiety!

- 1) Complete an online Public Speaking Anxiety Survey at the Student Services Office
- 2) Enroll in the Public Speaking Anxiety and the Anxiety and Personal Performance course (offered as an elective in the Work Experience)
- 3) Read the Anxiety and Public Speaking Manual (available at the LRC on the shelf and 2nd copy)
- 4) Make an appointment with a counselor in the Student Services

For more than 100 years people have been looking to the Keweenaw Mission. The great quality service and working hard people's working hard. (JULY 1997)

The market disappeared in the late 1990s, and the 1970s-style suits are still the 1970s. Many shops have changed a few other items. The market has grown after opening an new house on Gay Street between Linden and Liberty streets in 2004. It has become more diverse in both style and merchandise.

There was local coverage from Dallas and the other backgrounds, trying to show a little picture of what others felt about it, people trying to persuade them otherwise in 1971.

Nerds on Site provides advice

By JENNIFER HENDERSON

Being on the inside and getting out the door is a lot easier when you have a good idea of what you're doing. It's a lot easier when you have a good idea of what you're doing.

That's the idea behind Nerds on Site, a new website that provides advice and information for people who are interested in the computer industry. The website is run by David Hill, a former Apple employee who has been in the industry for over 10 years. Hill says that the website is designed to help people who are interested in the computer industry to get a better understanding of the industry and to make sure that they are getting the most out of their experience.

The website also provides information about the latest in computer technology, including new products and services. Hill says that the website is designed to be a one-stop resource for people who are interested in the computer industry.

But it would be a mistake to think of Nerds on Site as just a website. It's a lot more than that. It's a community of people who are interested in the computer industry and who are willing to share their knowledge and experience with others.

It's not the cheapest guys on the block, but we have that extra flavor sauce." David Hill Nerds on Site

But what the website is designed to do is to help people who are interested in the computer industry to get a better understanding of the industry and to make sure that they are getting the most out of their experience.

The last is also a key to the success of Nerds on Site. It's a community of people who are interested in the computer industry and who are willing to share their knowledge and experience with others.
